Nos2<sup>tm1Lau</sup> homozygotes, unlike Nos2 wildtype mice, have virtually no serum nitric oxide response, but were susceptible to LPS-induced death. Nos2<sup>tm1Lau</sup> homozygotes exhibit altered responses to M. bovis (BCG), systemic E. coli infection, M. tuberculosis and M. pulmonis. In addition, wound healing properties of fibroblasts are impaired in Nos2<sup>tm1Lau</sup> homozygotes. These mice may be suitable for use in studies of inflammatory conditions including rheumatoid arthritis, inflammatory bowel disease, cardiac allograft rejection, hepatotoxicity, myocardial ischemia-reperfusion and septic shock.

Donating Investigator
Dr. Victor Laubach, University of Virginia Health Sci. Ctr.
Mice homozygous for the Nos2<sup>tm1Lau</sup> targeted mutation resemble wildtype mice in appearance and histology. Homozygotes are viable and fertile. Unlike Nos1 and Nos3, Nos2 is synthesized de novo in response to a variety of inflammatory stimuli. Induction of Nos2 results in the production of large amounts of nitric oxide (NO) over prolonged periods of time. Excessive NO production has been shown to be beneficial through its antitumor and antimicrobial activities. It is also thought to cause tissue damage and contribute to pathology in a variety of inflammatory conditions including rheumatoid arthritis, inflammatory bowel disease, cardiac allograft rejection, hepatotoxicity, myocardial ischemia-reperfusion and septic shock. NO has been demonstrated to play a role in the regulation of blood pressure and hemodynamics. In an LPS-induced model of septic shock, Nos2<sup>tm1Lau</sup> homozygotes had virtually no serum NO response, but were susceptible to LPS-induced death. Nos2<sup>tm1Lau</sup> homozygotes exhibit altered responses to M. bovis (BCG), systemic E. coli infection, M. tuberculosis and M. pulmonis. In addition, wound healing properties of fibroblasts are impaired in Nos2<sup>tm1Lau</sup> homozygotes. Also known as iNOS.

The Jackson Laboratory's Genotype Promise

The Jackson Laboratory has rigorous genetic quality control and mutant gene genotyping programs to ensure the genetic background of JAX® Mice strains as well as the genotypes of strains with identified molecular mutations. JAX® Mice strains are only made available to researchers after meeting our standards. However, the phenotype of each strain may not be fully characterized and/or captured in the strain data sheets. Therefore, we cannot guarantee a strain's phenotype will meet all expectations. To ensure that JAX® Mice will meet the needs of individual research projects or when requesting a strain that is new to your research, we suggest ordering and performing tests on a small number of mice to determine suitability for your particular project.
